Introduction

There are three branches of the U.S. Government, and they are used to exploit the masses. Even when one branch does something right, the others will often-times override it. This quick eBook is an easy to understand testament on how important it is to provide our society with vital information, such as how to completely override and abolish our corrupt government!

The Legislative Branch

The legislative branch is responsible for creating and amending the rules, regulations, and laws. They often give themselves raises, as they have no oversight on their own budget. They represent us, yet they will often ignore public opinion outright, especially if they disagree on an issue.

Half the time our Congressmen and Congresswomen don't even read our letters or opinions, and will often-times have their secretaries send out pre-written letters. Does this sound right to you?

Voluntary Associations

Rather than having a legislative branch that would serve our interests, we would rather have a system of Voluntary Associations, where members of an Anarchist Society would gather to help keep order and peace, and to make important decisions. This would provide anyone a chance to speak out and influence the decisions.

The Executive Branch

The Executive Branch is the administration of the country. They are responsible for enforcing the laws of this country. They cannot really make laws, but they can either Vote or Veto a bill. Although, the Legislative Branch can override a Veto with enough votes. Their basic functions are to provide services to the community, such as resources like water, electricity, food, and healthcare. But then again, they directly control how much we are being benefitted, and they will cut our benefits when necessary.

Individualism

Rather than having an administration to carry out services to a State, the individual would be solely responsible for their own benefits. They get back what they put out, and they control their own future and welfare. The individual would have absolute freedom and liberty.

The Judicial Branch

The Judicial Branch is endowed with the responsibility to keep laws in-check and make sure the government is equally balanced. They are also responsible for making important decisions in a court of law. The judge often-times has final say on whether you are Guilty or Not Guilty. You may also have to serve mandatory jury-duty.

Social Justice

Rather than having a Judicial Branch of government, there would be a voluntary organization of freely associated individuals. They would donate their own time at their own free-will to justify the right course of action for correcting or solving a problem, where human rights are held in the highest regard.

Closing Statements

No matter what branch of the government you are referring to, they are all corrupt, and they often override each other, where nothing gets done. An Anarchist society would free up time, resources, and it would give every human being their individual rights to liberty and equality.
